The right of possession of the Central hotel corner of Eighth and D streets northwest, has been a bone of contention for sometime past between Richard J. Marshall and James S. Grabam. After it was first raided and at the trial subsequent to the second raid testimony was presented to show that the premises had been sublet by Mr. Marshall to Mr. Graham. On the 14th of June last Mr. Marshall attempted to regain control of the hotel and was resisted by the tenant, but on the 11th instant, by writ of restitution, Mr. Marshall succeeded in securing possession of the premises, excepting the largoom and room No. 3. He claims that he was desirous of renovating and inting up the hotel for the reception of guests and was put to great expense to recover possession, and was compelied to guy the rent without any gain or profit in return. For these reasons he, by his attorney, Mr. Charles S. Moore, entered suit yesteriay against Mr. Graham to recover $2.000 damages.
